is ipv6 somewhere configured?

if unsure, post
ifconfig -a

i am asking because of this difference:
connection from ::ffff:10.14.10.240 connect from 195.183.212.11

Yes exactly, I dont see the ^M character on other hosts where my ftp works fine.

I really don't know whether this might lead us to the solution, but I have done a comparison bet'n these hosts and found that this is only difference.. Anyway pl find the messages

i am not so sure this ^M is abnormal.
r u telling you dont have this on other hosts where ftp works?

please post output of

lsauthent
ypwhich

from a node where ftp works and from this one where it does not work

Guys,

I have switched on the ftp logging and the messages that are being shown are as follows

login with USER and PASS.

Jun 25 10:10:52 aq6006 ftpd[46312]: command: QUIT^M Jun 25 10:10:52 aq6006 ftpd[46312]: <---- 221 Jun 25 10:10:52 aq6006 ftpd[46312]: Goodbye.

The abnormality I have observed is that I see a ^M character after each and every command. This happens when I try to connect from Windows machine or even Unix machine also.

Any thoughts on this..

TIA

Turn on ftp debug in hopes of receiving more info

Inetd.conf

ftp stream tcp6 nowait root /usr/sbin/ftpd ftpd -l syslog.conf

daemon.info /var/adm/ftplog refresh both src's.

Can you scp?

Yes I keep using it for telnet and I have just reset the password also..

I suspect it is something to do with some file permission....can you throw some light

Have you tried using telnet as the user? I have seen people using ftp and it failing when the password has expired...

no it is plain vanilla AIX(no ldap etc), when I connect from another system,once I enter the password it says login failed and come out. But if I use root user for ftp it works....
