To All,

At one time I had this nice PDF IBM listing that showed each generation of RS/6000 and whatnot as the years progressed. It was very nice to be able to see the various machines when looking for a used box.

The listing showed a picture of each box and gave a quick rundown of its basic config -- number of CPUs and their speed, memory, cache, drive capacity and types, etc. It also showed the years the boxes were production.

I am in the market for some used equipment and I could really use an updated listing. I have done several searches and am not having any luck finding a current version of this document.

Anyone have any links to where such a beast might live?

Thanks in advance,

Mark
