No; I do not mean the "chfs" (change filesystem) command; I mean what I say--the "chnfsmnt" (change NFS mount) command.

I think you might mean the chfs command like chfs-m /new/mount /old/mount

rather than the change nfs mount command ( chnfsmnt )...

Joseph,

Absolutely--you can rename your mount points by employing the "chnfsmnt" command. I would not recommend editing files directly; using the "chnfsmnt" command will ensure that the ODM and system definitions are updated properly.

I hope this helps.

I'm moving some filesystem to RAID and instead of backing up the data, maybe I can just rename mount points.

Is this possible?
