My only concern is that we may be getting close enough to the code freeze for 5-STABLE, which has so many other areas that need stabilization first, that we might want to consider holding off until 6-CURRENT is branched. I'm guessing, from reading some of the bullet-item summaries, that our ability to ensure stabilization is going to be sufficiently challenged as it is :-)

This should probably be a re@ call. I do not remember, myself, when the freeze is scheduled for.
