Dear arch@ members,

I would like to remove /etc/skel from the BSD.root.distmtree file since it is no longer being used and I would like to remove unused items.

I understood from a PR (46062) that there are no references to this directory any longer. There is a proposal to symlink this; but I don't want to keep this alive at all where possible..

Does anyone have objections to this change? If so, please let me know why you have these objections so that I can take them into account.

Thanks in advance for your time!
