

Re: more problems with 5.3 and "TIMEOUT – WRITE_DMA" [SOLOTION]

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/FreeBSD/questions/2005-04/0720.html>

From: Mike Daemon (mike.daemon_at_gmail.com)

Date: 04/07/05

Date: Thu, 7 Apr 2005 17:15:57 +0200

To: FreeBSD Questions <freebsd-questions@freebsd.org>

On Mar 27, 2005 11:47 PM, Mike Daemon <mike.daemon@gmail.com> wrote:

> On Sun, 27 Mar 2005 13:32:43 -0800, Thomas Foster <tbonius@comcast.net> wrote:

> > I had this same issue

>

> I'll have seen some more posts on the list with about the same problem

> therefore, I hope some bright one will take a look at the code.. and > post something smart.. I'm very much stuck, hoping any new snapshot > will work..

>

> on an older AMD Nforce board. 5.2.1 seemed to install > > and run.. but moving to 5.3 gave me issues. I tinkered with the DMA > > settings in the BIOS.. to no avail. The Geometry seemed to be off on the > > drive I noticed (IBM deskstar) when I newfs'd it.. so I changed out drives..

> > but never got it working.. I eventually just dropped Gentoo on it.

>>

> > What chipset, drive controller hard drive are you using on this system?

>

> <http://www.freebsd.org/cgi/man.cgi?query=ata&sektion=4&manpath=FreeBSD+5.3-RELEASE>

>

> I'll noticed that my idecontroller IS supported by the ata-driver, > witch makes it even stranger.. (I think I will check on my cabling > once more, even if it's a newly installed _rounded_ 32 pin cable..)

>

> My atacontroller: SiS 5513

> My HDD: Seagate 200 GB

>

>

>>

>> T

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: "Mike Daemon" <mike.d>