I'm a regular in some of the anti-spam newsgroups and servepath don't exactly have a stellar reputation. They just signed up Eddy Marin last month, for example.

So, hosting with servepath.com may well lead to restricted access to port 25 of other networks. However, I don't know what they're worth from a purely technical POV.

NB to any members of servepath.com's staff reading this: the above is publicly available information, I invented none of it. Don't shoot the messenger.
