

Suggested permissions on /etc/dcdd.h00 file

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/Tru64-UNIX-Managers/2005-11/0015.html>

---

From: Maglinger, Paul (PMAGLINGER_at_scvl.com)

Date: 11/11/05

Date: Fri, 11 Nov 2005 10:12:36 -0600

To: Tru64 Unix Managers list <tru64-unix-managers@ornl.gov>

We ran SekChek on one of our Tru64 5.1B clusters and it threw up a flag that the /etc/dcdd.h00 had world writable permissions. Specifically, it has 666 now and I'm thinking of changing to 644? Anyone see any bad things happening with this?

Paul Maglinger, A+, CA, CCA, CET, MCSE

Systems Administrator

Shoe Carnival Inc.

(812)867-4674

pmaglinger@scvl.com

---