

comp.os.vms: Re: To all "patriotic" americans...

Re: To all "patriotic" americans...

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.os.vms/2004-01/1262.html>

From: Warren Oates (Warren_at_InHell.Com)

Date: 01/15/04

Date: Wed, 14 Jan 2004 18:48:16 -0500

In article <4004B331.63915548@NeOaSrPtAhMINiOnWk.net>, "David J. Dachtera" <djesys.nospam@NeOaSrPtAhMINiOnWk.net> wrote:

:I don't get the connection.

:

:Henry Ford developed mass-production into a viable business model.

:

:Sam Walton developed discounted mass-merchandising into a viable business model.

The Romans like, built the first roads. Henry Ford built the first vehicle that let a man quickly go by road to the next town where he could buy cheaper stuff than in his own town. The man did, not being stupid. Next came paved and numbered highways, boxstores, megamalls, and Walmart.

On the way we discovered sex and drugs and rock and roll, more or less in that order.

The Fall of the Roman Empire? Just one of those things.

--

Looks like more of Texas to me.

... Arizona, where the nights are warm and the roads are straight.