no, that did not matter, but the fact that Bill LIED to everyone in front of the camera when exposed, that is not the type of person that should be president ...

Sorry, but I cannot be prevented from answering to this.

Lying about getting a blow job in the oval office while on the phone with a world leader hurt only the clinton family.

Lying about Iraq has resulted in a president killing over 3000 americans as well as over 150,000 (probably many more) innocent Iraqis and forcing millions to leave Iraq and become refugees in neighbouring countries because of the mess you have created.

War crimes are far more serious than lying about a blow job. If you are still blind to this, then you are in a serious problem.

Getting a blow job in the oval office while on the phone with a world leader costs nothing to the nation. Lying so you can convince gullible people of some threat that is so imminent that you cannot even let UN inspectors finish their jobs and bypass the UN and invade/destroy a country has costed how much to taxpayers ? It is probably over a trillion dollars by now. Sure, Haliburton shareholders are probably happy, but who'se footing the bill ? Your kids who will inherit that terrible debt.

Lying about getting a blow job in the oval office while on the phone with a world leader has not stained the reputation of a country. It has simply made one president more "colourful".

Invading a country without a UN resolution has hurt you're country's capabilities as a world leader. Having USSR style concentration camps and suspending due legal process inside the USA for certain people has destroyed your country's ability to work to get other countries to respect due legal process and human rights.

Performing torture and having secret detention facilities has certainly not helped your country's image. Using private mercenaries to do the dirty work because they are not bound by US military code of conduct is also hurting your country's image. (search for "Blackwater").

The rest of the world cannot understand why US citizens and supposedly opposition politicians are letting your current regime get away with murder (literally).

Re: Democrats destroying America ...

As long as the perpetrators of the USA's war crimes , human rights and due legal process violations are not made accountable for their crimes, then the rest of the world can only conclude that USA citizens support and protect their war criminals which makes you on par with Serbia which is protecting another war criminal Karadich. At least Karadich didn't get a job at the World Bank.

This is a far cry from americans which used to be staunch defenders of human rights, due legal process FOR EVERYONE, freedom and liberties etc. This is a far cry from americans who used to get riled up at the mere mention of a national identity card, but who didn't even react at all when the current regime they elected twice passed a law to implement national identity card.

There are far more serious issues in your country than constantly harping about Bill Clinton having lied about his getting blow jobs in the oval office.

How come the patriot act wasn't passed when terrorists blew up a government building in Oklahoma City ?
How come patriot act wasn't passed after every major school shooting incident ? (another one today)
