

Re: BSDI 4.3 Kernel API -> FreeBSD X.X Kernel API?

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.unix.bsd.freebsd.misc/2004-12/0846.html>

From: The Doctor (doctor_at_doctor.nl2k.ab.ca)

Date: 12/15/04

Date: Wed, 15 Dec 2004 19:59:31 +0000 (UTC)

In article <hLXvd.6119$hc7.648445@twister.southeast.rr.com>, cd <cd@newsgroups.nospam> wrote:

>Is it a case of BSDI 4.3 being downlevel from FreeBSD 4.3 (like BSDI is at >FreeBSD version 4.0 or 3.x) or does BSDI have its own set of kernel APIs >that are entirely different?

>

>I have ported my drivers from Windows to Linux to Solaris to FreeBSD so I am >familiar with major porting changes. I was hoping BSDI was similar enough to >FreeBSD that the port was fairly simple.

>

Different API all over. Hence you need the BSD/OS 4.3.X Source Code.

Contact Chris at BSD MALL , <http://www.bsdmall.com> or 1-866-BSD-MALL .

>"Kris Kennaway" <kkenn@xor.obsecurity.org> wrote in message >news:slrncrvn75.ll8.kkenn@xor.obsecurity.org...

>>

>> ...after first modifying the source to deal with the different kernel >> API. The BSD variants are similar (so porting the driver should not >> be too much work if you know what you're doing), but they're not >> isomorphic.

>>

>> Kris

>

>

--

Member - Liberal International

This is doctor@nl2k.ab.ca Ici doctor@nl2k.ab.ca

God Queen and country! Beware Anti-Christ rising!

Merry Christmas 2004 and Happy New Year 2005