

HELP!!!Re: usb mass storage on a non-usb sparc system?

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.unix.solaris/2003-08/1117.html>

From: Yunxiang Zhang (yxzhang_at_stanford.edu)

Date: 08/09/03

Date: Sat, 9 Aug 2003 00:16:16 -0700

Actually sad thing happened. I tried to format the 250GB western digital external combo hard drive and failed. Then I think I'm going to hook it back to my winXP. But I can never find the drive in "my computer" although it shows up in the device manager. What should I do now? How do I rescue my new hard drive? Please, somebody HELP!

Thanks!!

On Fri, 8 Aug 2003, Yunxiang Zhang wrote:

- > Hi, all
- >
- > I've just installed a addonics pci usb2 host controller on my ultra60. And
- > it seem to work properly. After I insert a western digital 250GB external
- > hd to one port. It recognized as usb mass storage. But I can't see
- > anything when using volcheck -v. What should I do in order to use
- > removable media manager? Is it possible to mount it as pcfs? How?
- >
- > The other question might be silly. Is there a driver supporting usb2?
- > Addonics's web site suggests installing a solaris8 patch. But I'm using
- > solaris9. Anybody here has any comments on my dreaming of having usb2 mass
- > storage on an old non-usb sparc system? Maybe I am mad, but it is even
- > crazy to sit there wating for >7000minutes to format my 250GB hard drive.
- >
- > Thanks for your time! Appreciate your help!
- >
- >
- >