

Re: SCNA Solaris 10

Source: <http://unix.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.unix.solaris/2005-04/0144.html>

From: Scott Howard (scott_at_hunterlink.net.au)

Date: 04/02/05

Date: 2 Apr 2005 03:06:16 GMT

|a|i|e|i|e| <aieie@aieie.com> wrote:
> I ended this exam few hours ago...

No, you ended the BETA version of this exam...

> I don't know about my score, and i don't know the minimum score for pass

At this stage there is no minimum score for a pass – that will be decided once the beta is over (that's one of the purposes of the beta exams) and if you got above that mark in the beta then you will pass.

> It was quite hard

Thanks, we tried hard to make it so :)
This is the hardest of the Sol10 certification exams, and by far the hardest. The plan was to make it such that you wouldn't pass if you didn't actually know the material and hadn't played with (most of) it – after all, that's the point of certification!

> and TOO long..

The beta exams are much longer than the real exams. The real exams will get a randomised, smaller subset of questions. What you got was a subset of the full list, but a much larger subset than normal.

Scott